Outline

This interactive session will explore the evolution of Türkiye's startup ecosystem through discussion and real examples. We will look at how startups, investors, universities, and innovation hubs interact, and how Türkiye's ecosystem connects with regional markets across Europe and the Middle East. Participants will also reflect on how different ecosystems emerge and what lessons can be drawn for other regions.

About guest speaker

Dr. Büşranur Tenik Özdemir

Startup Catalyst

Dr. Büşranur is a Programs Specialist at Sabancı University's SUCool Entrepreneurship and Incubation Center, where she designs and manages programs that bridge entrepreneurship, technology, and investment. She supports deep-tech and impact-driven ventures, contributes to research commercialization, and develops scalable models that connect academia, industry, and investors. Operating across multiple layers of Turkey's entrepreneurial ecosystem, she serves on various boards and in international organizations, bringing together diverse stakeholders and fostering collaboration among founders, corporations, and the investment community. She is also a passionate trainer and facilitator who delivers workshops and mentorship programs to drive economic and social impact.
